

Information about UCAS Clearing

Dear Parents

As your son/daughter's A Level examinations draw to a close, you may be thinking ahead to results day. Generally, our students attain excellent results, and most will be accepted by their first or second choice universities. If your son/daughter is concerned that they may miss their offers and therefore require the Clearing process to attend university, Luke Gibbons, Head of Undergraduate Admissions at the University of East Anglia (UEA), is giving an online talk directly related to this.

Luke Gibbons will lead an invaluable and reassuring guide to Clearing in five easy steps on 9 July at 6 - 6.45 pm, including a mock call to help students understand the process and know what to expect. He will be joined by the excellent Lucy Nottingham, Higher Education Adviser, and Arya Pandey, who has just completed her first year of undergraduate study, having gone through Clearing. In addition to the insights from Luke and Lucy, Arya will share her firsthand experience of the process and subsequent study.

As examinations have not yet concluded, I have not copied students into this email and instead, leave you to mention this opportunity at an appropriate time.
